Young Desperado Captured After Hour's Gun Fight

Trapped In Room Surrenders After Hit By Machine Gun Fire

COMPANION TAKEN; CONFESSES MURDER

Crowds Throng Streets As Bullets Ricochet From Near-by Buildings

NEW YORK, May 7. (AP)—Francis "Two-gun" Crowley, youthful desperado, was captured by police late Thursday in an hour's gun battle during which he was shot several times.

Trapped on the top floor of a rooming house with two companions, Crowley fought it out with police machine gunners. Penned in his room with a girl identified as Helen Walsh, 16, his companion on a motor party in which patrolman Frederick Hirsch was shot to death Tuesday night, Crowley yielded only after officers had hewn their way throug the roof and resorted to tear gas bombs.

Companion Confesses

Rudolph Durlinger, wanted in connection with the killing of Virginia Brannen, a taxi-dancer, in Yonkers, N. Y., was captured with Crowley. Police an hour later said Durlinger had confessed it was he who killed the red haired Brannen girl.

Durlinger and the woman companion were not wounded in the exchange of more than 700 shots which threw the up-town Manhattan neighborhood into excitement and attracted a throng of nearly 10,000 spectators.

Crowley, with bullet wounds in his legs, was taken to Bellevue hospital. The girl and Durlinger were taken to police headquarters under heavy guard.

Follows Diligent Search

Crowley's capture came after a search which had covered the five Boroughs of New York City and every road and lane of Long Island for miles around North Merrick, the town in which Patrolman Hirsch was killed. Thursday the chase had extended into New Jersey, but no real clue to Crowley's whereabouts was found until late Thursday afternoon when detectives picked up his trail.

Detectives entered the rooming

LATEST REMARKS OF FIERY GENERAL WILL BE IGNORED

Second Of Butler Incidents Closed, Authorities Will Forget Third

WASHINGTON, May 7 (AP)—The state department disposed Thursday of the second recent international diplomatic incident involving Major General Smedley D. Butler and decided to ignore what appeared to offer potentialities of a third incident.

Secretary Stimson announced a formal explanation submitted by Minister Bellegarde of Haiti in response to a request by the state department regarding remarks he was quoted as making about the marine officer in a copyrighted interview with the Washington Herald had satisfactorily closed the incident.

No Reflection Meant

The minister explained in his note that he had not endeavored to cast reflections on the marine officer when he said he did not know of the existence of Fort Riviere in Haiti for the capture of which Butler was awarded the congressional medal of honor.

A speech Wednesday night in Philadelphia in which Butler said he had seen the late President Huerta of Mexico "drunk" attracted a widespread interest in both diplomatic and official circles. An indirect criticism by Butler of the state department's Nicaraguan policy likewise came under official scrutiny.

Since the references to Huerta were mainly of a personal character directed against a dead man, state department officials decided they should be ignored, unless the question was raised by the Mexican government.

The general's indirect references to the Nicaraguan policy were considered to express his personal opinion.

HOME RULE BILL PASSES TO THIRD SENATE READING

Two Amendments For Population Increase, Abandonment Added

CONTROL OF COUNTIES SEEN DISAPPEARING

House Passes Bil For Child Welfare Division Under Control Board

AUSTIN, May 7. (AP)—After holding the legislative spotlight most of the day, the Beck home rule resolution was passed to third reading Thursday by the senate on a vote of 12 to 10. It must receive 21 votes to be submitted to the people.

The senate tacked two amendments to the proposed amendment. One increased the population figure from 60,000 to 75,000 and the second would allow counties adopting the home rule plan to abandon it upon majority vote. Such an election would be ordered by ten per cent of the qualified voters of the area.

Third Amendment Rejected

A third amendment which would have required consent of two thirds of the voters in a consolidated district to create indebtedness or vote funds for refunding bonds, was rejected by the senate.

Senator Woodul of Houston said under the Beck plan the commissioners court or other persons might act as the governing body of a home rule division.

He said the soverign powers of the state would never be endangered, that the resolution carried a protective amendment stating such powers should never be subordinated to the home rule plan.

Paints Ominous Picture

Senator Moore of Greenville said he saw a bunch of stiff collared, stiff backed, dictators sitting at oak desks excluding the rural populace from a say in the affairs of their government.

Senator Parrish of Lubbock said adoption of the amendment meant good bye to legislative control over counties.

The house passed a bill proposing creation of a child welfare division under the board of control. The vote was 9 to 20. An amendment limiting the salary of the division chief to $5,000 and the salaries of three assistants to $1,500

Three Children Killed And 23 Injured When School Bus Hit By Train; 2 Injured May Die

Vehicle Struck by Slow-Moving Freight Train Near Merced, Cal.

DRIVER SAYS HE DID NOT SEE LOCOMOTIVE

Injured Removed to Hospital; All Physicians In County Called

MERCED, Cal., May 7, (AP)—Three children were dead, two were dying and 21 others were injured as the result of a freight train-school bus disaster here Thursday afternoon. Among the seriously injured is C. D. Kresgger, driver of the bus, who was previously reported killed.

The dead are:

Janice Ahr, 6, Robert Ruller, 8, and Dolores Epsen, 9.

Billy Epsen, Dolores' brother, is among the seriously injured.

The bus was driven by J. P. Kregger. His wife was among the seriously injured.

Did Not See Train.

Kregger said he did not see the train. Conductor J. A. Holmes of the freight train said the bus did not stop at the track, but drove ahead into the train, with the engineer blowing the whistle, and the wigwag signal at the crossing working.

The train was a Santa Fe freight bound from Fresno to Riverbank, near Modesto. Engineer George Parks said the train had slowed down for a switch and was traveling 8 miles an hour when it hit the bus.

The injured include Lee Bortorff, Jack Quilline, June Tucker, Leland Baleme, Roxy Piovanni, Marshall Tuttle, Richard Fulton, Wilbert Clements, Richard Weller, Shirley Keller, Muriel Keller, Merilyn Robinson, Dolores Reed, Helen Fogelman, Irene Ahr, Bobby Rau, Esther Barnes, Jean Oakes and Clifford Weller. The children are all students at the John C. Fremont grammar school here.

The injured were taken to Mercy hospital, and all physicians and nurses in the county were summoned. Teachers from the Fremant school went to the hospital to help.

Confusion reigned at the scene of the wreck and at hospitals where parents struggled to find their injured children and mothers claimed the bodies of their dead. Additional physicians and specialists were summoned from San Francisco.

The only two eye witnesses of the crash were Mr. and Mrs. Wicklund, who were in an automobile directly behind the bus.

TARIFF AND WAR DEBTS POLICIES OF U. S. FLAYED

Importance Of Debts Settlements In International Economic Structure

WASHINGTON, May 7, (AP)—Resentment against war debts owed the United States and this country's tariff policies flared forth in sharp speeches Thursday before the international chamber of commerce.

Dr. Carl Bergmann, former German secretary of state for finance, emphasized the importance of reparations and debts settlements in the international economic structure and described them as having been linked together to all intents and purposes.

Tariff Attack Applauded

He called upon the international chamber to foster with all its power the reconsideration of the settlements.

An attack on the American tariff by Henry Bell, an English banker, was applauded at length. He contended this country had failed to appreciate the duties incumbent upon it in its new position as a creditor nation, concluding "we ask them to rise to the responsibility of their great position."

"It is an attitude of one part of the world, if not of more, to be more anxious to sell its goods, but to be very careful that it shouldn't buy anybody else's goods in exchange," he said. "What is hurting the world mostly today is, I think, a misconception on the part of the great nation whose guests we are. They are magnificent hosts, but they are awfully poor customers."

Dr. Bergmann said he had been

SALESMAN SIGNS CONFESSION IN DEATH OF FOUR

Admits Setting Home On Fire; Four Charges of Murder Filed

GREELEY, Colo., May 7. (AP)—After more than 4 hours of repeated denials of guilt police said James V. Foster, 49, Greeley salesman dictated and signed a confession that he set fire to his home last Tuesday morning, causing the death of his wife and their children.

After the confession four separate charges of first degree murder were filed against him, and a coroner's jury found Foster was solely responsible for the deaths by fire.

Confession Rambling

The confession, for the most part rambling and in some instances hardly coherent, was made to Sheriff W. W. Wyatt, who took charge of the questioning early Thursday.

"I have gone 'bug house' two or three times before," the confession read, "it was the grind, the grind. It drove me crazy. The devil has been working in me, but I feel better, now that I have told the truth."

Foster told authorities the worry of supporting his family and the death of two children in 1929 had unnerved him.

Threw Gas On Wife

Foster, in detailing his movements early Tuesday, said he awoke about 4 o'clock. He said he had purchased two gallons of gasoline, telling his wife he intended putting it in his car. He said he talked with Mrs. Foster for a time and that she went back to sleep. He said he dressed, got the can of gasoline and poured it in the children's bedroom, and then went

HEALTH PROGRAM TO BE DISCUSSED IN MASS MEET

State Officials Will Be In Paris Saturday Morning For Event

Proposed program to be carried out by the Lamar county full time health unit will be outlined by V. M. Ehlers, state sanitary engineer, and Dr. J. R. Malone, state epidemiologist, at a mass meeting to be held at the court house Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. Residents of Paris and Lamar county are urged to attend this meeting for the purpose of acquainting themselves with the projects to be undertaken by the health unit.

A central committee which will work in conjunction with the health unit will be named at the mass meeting by Mr. Ehlers and Dr. Mahone. The desired committee would be composed of the county judge, C. A. Martin, the county health officer (not yet named) as chairman; home demonstration agent, Miss Lida Cooper; county agent, A. L. Edmiaston; a member of the Lamar County Medical association; the president of the county P. T. A. council, Mrs. Dixon Shelton of Howland, and the president of the chamber of commerce, A. G. (Pat) Mayse.

To facilitate countywide instructions in the promotion of health and the control of disease, a local committee will be appointed in each community in the county. The local committee will be composed generally of the three leading members of that community.

The local committees will call meetings in their particular communities for the respective residents to receive instructions in methods of disease preventives and control.

H. J. Presley, sanitarian, who recently arrived in Paris to inaugurate the health unit, will devote his time to malaria control, water and sewage work. Completing the unit will be a registered nurse and a physician who will act as full time health officer.

Operating funds of the health unit are furnished by the state department of health; while Lamar county is asked $85 per month to pay the salary of an office assistant for the health officer.

Troops Moving Into Small Kentucky Mining Town Get Welcome From Residents

EVARTS, Ky., May 7. (AP)—Waving American flags and cheering loudly, several hundred residents of the strife-torn Evarts coal mining community greeted 325 national guardsmen as they detrained here Thursday afternoon bearing orders to "protect those who behave themselves and take care of those who do not."

The guardsmen, dispatched by Governor Flem D. Sampson, after a series of outbreaks, during the past few months had brought death to five men and large property damages, came from Harlan where they mobilized on Thursday morning.

While the troops were alighting from their special trains made up of day coaches, box car and cabooses, Colonel Dan M. Carrell, in command, addressed an assembly of residents and union miners in the little school house which had been closed because of disorders.

Co-operation Promised

He also told newspapermen he had spent a part of the morning conferring with union officials, mine operators and county officers in an effort to find a permanent solution to the economic situation and labor disagreements that have resulted in hundreds of unemployed miners in the county. He said he would report direct to Governor Sampson on the results of his conferences. Addressing the meeting in the school house Colonel Carrell said, "We are here for the protection of the community with an impartial and unbiased attitude to preserve peace and safety."

He was introduced by Dr. S. E. Crouch, a local physician, and then W. M. Hightower, president of the local United Mine Workers, asked all who would co-operate with the soldiers to hold up their hands.

OKLAHOMA CITY, May 7. (AP)—Contract for building a free bridge over the Red River, between Jackson county, Oklahoma and Wilbarger county, Texas, at a cost of $122,501, was awarded to W. S. Crawford of Dallas, by the Oklahoma State Highway commission Thursday.

Special Device To Cap Wild Oil Well at Gladewater is Made

GLADEWATER, May 7. (AP)—A specially designed capping device was being made at Kilgore on Thursday night for use in capping the outlaw Sinclair No. 1 Cole Gusher, extinguished Wednesday night after it had burned for eight days and brought death to nine men. The capper is an inverted wedge-shaped device which when placed on the casing head, will tighten its grip as pressure increases.

Oil Still Spouting

Oil still spouted 50 feet into the air from the crater left by Wednesday night's nitroglycerine blast. The new 90-foot derrick was skidded within a few feet of the gusher Thursday but the first attempt to cap the well will be made without it. Conditions in the vicinity remained hazardous, a heavy cloud of gas forming and seeping into a valley to the south. A thin film of oil covered trees, automobiles and farm home of Tom Cole, owner of the land, 400 yards away.

The Cole family had to cook their meals elsewhere, Ranger Sergeant M. T. Gonzaullas forbidding fires in the kitchen.

The Weather

Maximum temperature in Paris degrees.

East Texas, increasing cloudiness, warmer in east and south portions Friday; probably thundershowers in north portion Friday afternoon or night; Saturday unsettled, probably showers in extreme east portion, cooler. Moderate to fresh southerly winds on the coast becoming northerly Saturday.

Defy Of Woman Witness In Senate Inquiry Of Cannon Expenditures Brings Halt

WASHINGTON, May 7. (AP)—Defied by a woman witness, the senate campaign funds committee was halted abruptly Thursday in its inquiry into the disposition of anti-Smith funds by Bishop James Cannon, Jr., in the 1928 campaign.

Miss Ada L. Burroughs of Richmond, Va., the treasurer of the Southern Methodist Churchman's anti-Smith organization, left the stand after declining to answer more than a score of questions in the face of a warning of possible prosecution.

Will Cite For Contempt

Later, Chairman Nye of the committee said "certainly we will have to cite her to the senate for contempt".

Harry F. Sinclair, millionaire oil operator, was cited for a refusal to testify before a senate committee. He served four months in jail.

Senator Nye also said he would call the committee next week to consider information now before it "which may be found the basis for a report to the senate of a violation of the federal corrupt practices act." During the questioning he said evidence of a violation was available.

Startles Committee

Miss Burroughs startled the committee when she said in a mild tone after reading a prepared statement that "I most respectfully decline to give any testimony in this investigation."

In her prepared statement Miss Burroughs denied the legality of the senate resolution authorizing the inquiry and challenged the constitutionality of the federal corrupt practice act—which Bishop Cannon is accused of violating.

Bishop Cannon, who sent a similar protest to the committee, sat near Miss Burroughs, resting his chin on one of his crutches as she stood her ground against questioning by Senator Nye, answering repeatedly "I decline to testify." He later gave a copy of Miss Burroughs' statement to the press.

Navigation Meet Is Planned For Paris By Lamar C. of C.

R. J. Presley, sanitarian for the state health department and a member of health unit for Lamar county, spoke at the meeting of the board of directors of the chamber of commerce Thursday afternoon. He explained the nature of the work of the unit and was assured by the chamber of commerce of full support and co-operation.

Discussion of flood control and navigation resulted in decision to hold a meeting in the near future to which congressmen, senators and flood control and navigation experts will be invited. The date is to be set later.

241 Checks Received

Report of the government seed and feed loan showed 241 checks received by Lamar county farmers for a total of $18,058.30. The chamber of commerce helped to defray all expenses and provided office room and clerical help for the work.

The poultry report showed that 8,727 purebred eggs were exchanged for ordinary eggs.

Discussion of support of county agents and home demonstration work seemed to create renewed interest among the directors. "We must give more attention to agriculture if we ever expect to make any progress," K. Hunter Bywaters, one of the directors said. R. O. Murphy and W. C. Clark voiced similar opinions.

The chamber of commerce proper, the retailers division and the poultry division all reported finances in good shape, each having small cash balance on hand.

Texas Judge Dies

HUNTSVILLE, May 7. (AP)—Judge A. T. McKinney, said to be the oldest living graduate of Princeton, died at his home here Thursday after three week's illness. He was graduated from Princeton in 1858, the institution being known then as the College of New Jersey. The recent death of the Rev. T. P. Cleveland of Atlanta, Ga., left Judge McKinley as the oldest living graduate.

Reprieve In Grain Rate Squabble Is Won By Railroads

CHICAGO, May 7. (AP)—Three federal judges, sitting en banc, late Thursday granted 72 railroads a temporary order restraining for 60 days the application of reduced grain rates announced for June 1, by the interstate commerce commission.

They alloted to the government 10 days to reply to the railroad's brief for an injunction and gave the railroads the five days following time to file a reply.

Will Delay Reduction

The decision has the effect of delaying for five weeks the reduced rates which the railroads had been required to post May 15.

Circuit Judge William Sparks, presiding, and District Judges Charles E. Woodward and Walter C. Lindley deliberated only five minutes upon the decision after listening to two days of argument on behalf of the western and eastern carriers, the interstate commerce commission, the traffic regulating bodies of 14 states and other interested parties.

The order of the commission, raising freight rates on many coarse grains but reducing rates on wheat throughout the western district was announced last July 2 and was to have gone into effect last October.

Framers Of Murder Indictment Of 1865 Show Real Ingenuity And Originality

Now comes to light a Fannin county grand jury indictment of 1865 which states Daniel W. Byars, "late of the county of Fannin and state of Texas"—late because he fled before the grand jury convened—"not having the fear of God before his eyes, but moved and seduced by the insitgation of the devil . . ." did, in substance, shoot L. L. Harris.

"In substance" being a substitution for the involved rhetoric which describes an assault by means of a "certain six shooting pistol of the value of $20, then and there loaded and charged with gun powder and six leaden bullets . . ." The bullets, strange to say, were "sent forth from the six shooting pistol" by "force of gun powder."

After struggling through the maze of "said's," "aforesaid's," "then and there's," and "sent forths" the reader eventually reaches the conclusion Harris suffered "one mortal wound of the depth of six inches and of the breadth of one-half inch."

Although contrary to the conventions observed by mortal wounds, Harris died . . . in terms expressed thus: "of which said mortal wound the said L. L. Harris on the said fifth day of March in the year aforesaid, in the county of Fannin and state aforesaid then and there instantly died."

Were death so complicated and involved as the grand jury's description of Harris' death it may be said that few people would elect to die.

Whether the use of periods in the indictment would have dissipated the legal atmosphere thereof, is not known, for approximately 500 words twist in and out with the feeble assistance of a few commas and one semicolon until a period is reached at the end of the indictment. Seemingly, it would necessitate 12 men to crowd some 500 words into one sentence —indictment or no, the comma-juggling feat is worth the efforts of 12 honest men.

Following the shooting, Byars fled to Mississippi where he remained until 1911. On his return to Texas he was apprehended and brought to trial more than 45 years after he was indicted. Although the evidence in the indictment is of sufficient weight to convict a man several centuries after his death, yet the case was dismissed on a motion of the defense counsel.

Byars, it seems, was a Confederate soldier, while Harris was a Union soldier.

The case was disposed of in 1911 when R. L. Lattimore, attorney of Paris, was district attorney of the 6th district composed of Fannin, Lamar and Red River counties.

Committee Will Judge Bywaters Pasture Friday

Adjudged the best pasture in Lamar county, K. Hunter Bywaters' pasture at Roxton Friday afternoon will be scored by a committee of four state-judges selected to score the twenty-four pastures entered in the contest sponsored by the East Texas Chamber of Commerce. A field meet, which will include discussion of clovers and grasses and the qualities of a good pasture, will be held at 4:30 o'clock Friday afternoon in connection with the scoring of Bywaters' pasture, according to A. L. Edmiaston, county agent.

The state-judging committee is composed of George Adams, district agent of the A. and M. College extension service; Eugene Butler of Dallas, editor of the Progressive Farmer; C. M. Evans of Marshal, agricultural agent for the Texas and Pacific Railway; and Paul Walser of Tyler, agricultural agent for the St. Louis and Southwestern railway.

All farmers interested in pasture improvement are urged by Mr. Edmiaston to attend the field meet at Bywaters' pasture Friday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock.

At the THEATERS

A Scene from "FINGER PRINTS" with KENNETH HARLAN and EDNA MURPHY UNIVERSAL CHAPTER PLAY

"Finger Prints" new serial at Lamar is thrilling mystery play.

At the Plaza

Showing at the Plaza Saturday.

Brown, red and blonde hair form an effective contrast in the hirsute adornments of "3 Girls Lost," the Fox romance coming to the Plaza theater Saturday with Loretta Young, Joyce Compton and Joan Marsh as the title-role trio.

Miss Young is the brown-haired leading lady of the offering, with Miss Compton's flaming locks and Miss Marsh's ash-blonde wave lending distinction to their parts. While the latter's role of a gold-digger is well matched by her hair, "the kind gentlemen prefer," Miss Compton's roseate crown also justifies her portrayal of a girl with considerable temper, so that director Sidney Lanfield's selection of his "three girls" is consistent even to their coloring.

John Wayne, who scored so heavily in "The Big Trail," plays his third leading role in this stirring tale of romance and adventure in a big city. While Lew Cody enacts the part of the debonair villain.

At The Grand

It is difficult now to realize the extent of lawlessness that characterized frontier life three-quarters of a century ago. Those were the days when a rope and a convenient tree, or the ever ready revolver took the place of long, drawn out trials.

The Columbia feature, "The Avenger," starring Buck Jones, which comes to the Grand theatre today and tomorrow depicts the swift justice of the glamorous days of California in '49. The men quick on the trigger were the ones who ruled the roost and many who greedily sought gold wound up in unmarked graves.

Buck Jones, famous screen player, has the title role in "The Avenger," and Dorothy Revier plays opposite. Others in the cast are Edward Peil, Otto Hoffman, Sidney Bracy and Edward Hearn. Roy William Neill directed.

The mortal who gets mad easily usually has a few loose screws that need tightening.

At the Lamar

Who fired the fatal shot? When Joe Burke, notorious leader of a band of smugglers, is slain at a party in the home of his partner, John Mackey, four persons are suspected of the crime.

Garry Gordon, of the government secret service, is given the task of rounding up the gang and finding the slayer of Burke. Gordon becomes deeply involved in a thrilling mystery, and is seriously handicapped when he finds that the girl he loves and her father, are two of the suspects in the murder.

The many thrilling adventures of Gordon and the daring exploits of the smugglers are portrayed in the ten episode Universal chapter-play "Finger Prints," the first chapter of which is now playing at the Lamar theater.

The role of the secret service operative is played by Kenneth Harlan, who gives a virile performance as the scientific government man. Others in the excellent cast are Edna Murphy, Gayne Whitman, William Worthington, Gertrude Astor, William Thorne and Monte Montague.

The story was written by Arthur B. Reeve, and adapted by Basil Dickey and George Plympton, and was directed by Ray Taylor.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Webb, formerly of Paris, moved Thursday from Lawton, Okla., to Dalhart, Texas, to make their home, according to word received here by Mrs. Webb's parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Read.

Miss Ridings Is Judge

Miss Hope D. Ridings of the Paris Junior College faculty left Thursday for Austin where she will be one of the judges in the public speaking contests at the state Interscholastic League tournaments.

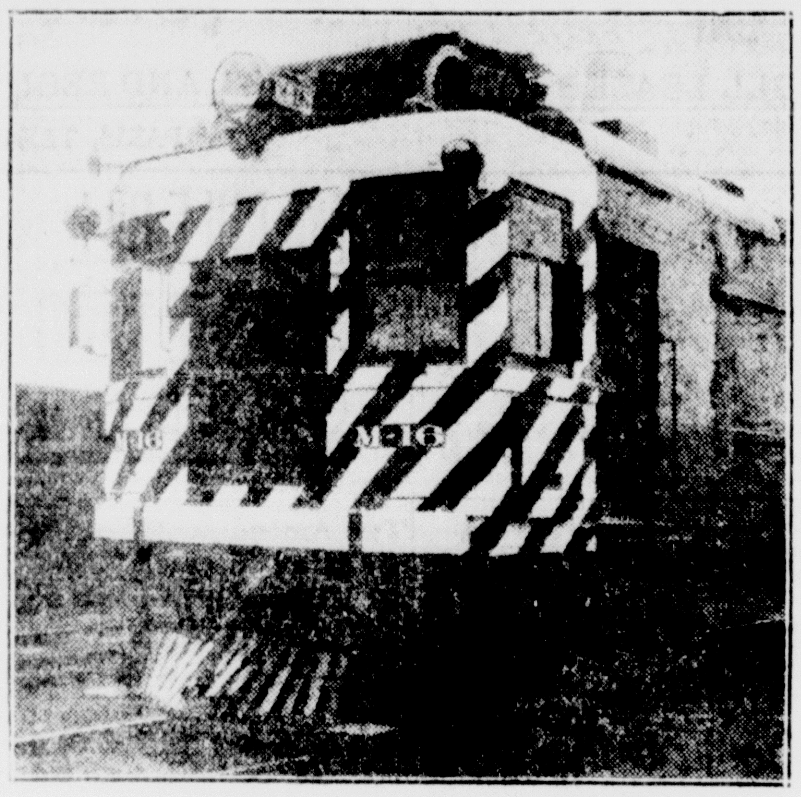
Cane Marks Oldest.

CHARLOTTE, Mich. (INS)—Charlotte's oldest citizen may be picked out by the strangers in the city by a gold-headed cane. James C. Hall, 84, now carries it. The cane has successively been the property of Charles H. B. Ball, who lived 91 years, May who died at the age of 92, Fletcher Campbell, who passed on when he reached 87.

Joy Ends Game.

WEYMOUTH, Eng. (INS)—When the football team of Weymouth Old Grammarians equalized the score in a match with the Dorset Regiment here recently, their goalkeeper was so delighted that he swung on the crossbar. The bar snapped, the gleeful goalkeeper fell, and as there was no spare crossbar the referee abandoned the game.

"Iron Horse" or Iron Zebra?



To lessen crossing accidents by attracting the attention of the drivers of motor vehicles, the Chicago and Alton Railroad management has adopted dazzling designs for the motor passenger trains. Picture above shows one of the trains newly bedecked with broad stripes of black and white. It is claimed that the increased visibility has already had the desired effect of lessening collisions at grade crossings.

Wildest Wildman Can Be Viewed for Payment of Large Amount of Kopeks

It might be Jimmy Walker, but some think it is Al Smith, anyhow, an expedition of brave scientists has captured New York's wildest Wild Man—captured him, caged him, and is carrying to the far corners of the earth that he may be exhibited in the monster midways of marvelous carnivals.

The expedition, led by Dr. Morgan Johnson and Dr. James R. Gill spent many days in the jungles of New York—it is even rumored that they indulged in sleepless nights—but at last their quest was crowned with success. In the tallest tree of Broadway they sighted a strange creature, peacefully clucking to himself as he dropped nuts on the animals passing below. Through the treetops at first and then on the ground, the strange creature fled, only to be cornered at last in the Lexington avenue subway, where he was captured after he had wounded three of his pursuers.

Securely caged, he was hurried from New York by automobile, as the leaders of the expedition feared that his jibbering might convey some message to others of his kind, a message that would cause them to attack the expedition. This speed prevented New York scientists completely identifying the wild man, but a large party of distinguished professors plans to leave for Paris, Texas, as soon a they can arrange for a bushel of kopeks for the strange man will be exhibited there, May 21-23 and the only coin current at the Grotto Carnival and Automobile show, where he will be exhibited, will be the kopek.

Study Selection Blanks For Local Students Ready

Professor A. H. Chamness, superintendent of schools, said Thursday he had finished the study selection blanks and they will be in the hands of every student either in high school now or entering it next fall. The selection blank states what subjects are required and leaves space for four electives to be added.

Students filling out the blanks have two subjects which are required, there are two electives unless the student has an average above 90, when he may take five subjects. The students are asked to give both their first and second choices in elective courses as the subject which they elect may be filled.

Mr. Chamness said that by the use of the blanks both the school and the student will be benefitted. The student will have time to consider what subject he really wants to take and consult with his parents about his curriculum. The school will be able to know in advance how many students will be in each class and can make provisions to care for them.

7:30 p. m. Paris Rebekah lodge No. 20 presents prize-winning babies in contests at coronation of "Miss Lamar County" at Masonic auditorium.

8 p. m. Notre Dame Academy will give its annual class night program at the Paris High School auditorium.

Medical Auxiliary Has Election of Officers

The Woman's Auxiliary of the Lamar County Medical Society met Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. R. L. Lewis for election of these officers: Mrs. J. D. McMillan, president, Mrs. O. W. Robinson, Mrs. J. M. Hooks and Mrs. T. C. Geron, vice-presidents and Mrs. W. W. McCuistion, secretary-treasurer.

Plans were made for the annual picnic for physicians of the society and their families, which is held each year at the Paris Golf club, the date to be Thursday, June 25.

Fourteen members of the auxiliary were present.

Pre-School Association Closes First Year

The First Ward Pre-School Association of Mothers closed its first year with election of these officers, Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. John Gibbons: Mrs. O. W. Boswell, president; and Mrs. C. M. Rushing, treasurer, re-elected; Mrs. Rafe Biard, vice-president, and Mrs. Reagan Hurt, secretary.

The lesson on "Early Feeding of Children" was led by Mrs. Clyde Antoine, and questions on the topic were discussed in round table fashion.

Afterward, sandwiches, cake and tea were served for refreshment.

The first meeting of the new year for the association will be held Tuesday, June 2, at the home of Mrs. Biard.

Legion Auxiliary Has Business Session

The American Legion auxiliary met for a short business discussion Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. William Hollje on North Sixteenth street, Mrs. Oscar Morgan being assistant hostess.

After the meeting was opened with the Lord's Prayer, routine matters were disposed of and Mrs. J. J. Early reported on award of the auxiliary's medal to a seventh grade student of Lamar county rural schools for the best record in reading, achievement tests and general studentship. This was won this year by Dorothy Mason of Brookston.

After the business session, the time was spent informally.

The next meeting of the auxiliary will be held Thursday, May 21 at the home of Mrs. Ben Smith.

Mrs. Harty Hostess at Allsgood Club Meet

Mrs. Ed Harty was hostess for Wednesday afternoon's meeting of the Allsgood club, opened as usual with repetition of the Lord's Prayer and roll call answered with Biblical quotations.

During the business session, plans were discussed for fish fry which has been postponed on account of the weather, and this was arranged for the next meeting date, May 20. In case of rain, the club will meet instead at the home of Mrs. Walter Gambill.

Several members were remembered with gifts by their "capsule" partners. After an hour spent in sewing, the hostess served delightful refreshments, being assisted by Mrs. Chester Monroe of Fort Worth, a guest and Mrs. Jack Crenshaw.

Literature Club Ends Season's Program

The American Literature club closed its season's program with a meeting Wednesday afternoon at Gordon Country club, Mrs. J. B. Strong, an honorary member, and Miss Mary Evans, recently elected to the club, were also in attendance. Mrs. J. H. Bentley, a former member also re-elected, was unable to be present.

Mrs. R. E. Gray, directed discussion of the program on "Progress in Arts, Sciences and Social Movements," in which all members took part. Roll call was an interesting feature, being answered with "favorite recipes for summer fun or food."

Refreshments were spread in picnic style after the lesson.

The schedule for meetings and the order of programs for next year's course of study were worked out at this meeting and year books will be distributed to members later. The club will resume its work in September.

Pros And Cons Of Church Membership Brought Out In Visitation Campaign

"No—no, I have no desire to place my membership in the church."

The worker was chagrined. The survey card gave information that this prospect preferred a certain church.

"But," replied the visitor, "the church is worth much to a community and you are missing a great deal by staying out of the church."

"That may be so, but I have lived here seven years and no preacher has darkened my door."

"Have you been to church so that the preacher might get acquainted with you"

"No, I haven't been to the church; it's the preacher's place to get around among the folks and know his members; part of the time I have been sick, and the Bible says a preacher must visit the sick."

"Yes, I think he should visit sick people. Did the doctor call to see you when you were sick."

"O yes, he made several calls."

"How did he know you were sick?"

"We phoned him to come and he had to make two calls one day."

"Now listen," said the worker, warming up a little, "The pastor of the church you have indicated a preference for has a telephone; you haven't been to church so he could know you personally; you didn't give him the same chance to serve you that you gave your doctor. . ."

"Well, I see this matter in a new light," interrupted the prospect. "I will be at church next Sunday and I am going to place my letter in the church here and get to work."

Many interesting experiences like the above can be related by the teams of workers in the Kernahan visitational evangelistic campaign being carried out in Paris. Workers tell some of their problems and tell of their successes at the supper conferences held each evening.

Thursday evening's supper at First Methodist church was attended by 213 workers with the dining room in charge of Mrs. M. Gordon and Mrs. A. N. Eubanks who led the ladies of the First Christian and the Protestant Methodist churches serving the meal. The meeting opened with prayer offered by the Rev. Leslie Evans of the Ramseur Memorial Baptist church. Brief remarks on several phases of the campaign were made by Dr. T. E. Hunt, the Rev. P. F. Herndon, J. C. DeShong and Miss Esther Maude Roach.

The conference of ministers attended by W. M. Wright, Harold C. Cooke, J. Roby Ward, P. J. Herndon, J. Russell Brown, F. L. Wear Ira C. Kiker and Dr. Wesley Spencer heard plans for the closing rally to be held Friday evening. The supper will be served at the regular hour by the ladies of the Central and First Presbyterian churches. Following an hour and a half of final visiting, all workers will reassemble at the First Methodist church auditorium for hearing the summary of results obtained during the entire campaign.

The reports Thursday night showed calls made upon 385 people by 162 workers. This resulted in 36 first decisions with 57 placing their membership in the churches by certificate. There were 24 members reported by the colored churches. For the entire campaign there have been 424 persons won for church membership on profession and by certificate.

house and called for reinforcements when Crowley refused to answer their request to admit them to the apartment.

Guns Trained On Windows

From vantage points in nearby houses guns were trained on windows of the room. Another order was given to occupants to come out and bullets were the answer. Then police raked the windows with machine and gun fire. Bullets chipped pieces of stone from the face of buildings across the street. For nearly an hour the neighborhood rattled with machine gunnery and pistol shots, while in the street squads of police formed lines and held back crowds which sought to get within the danger zone.

After Crowley had been wounded detectives got close enough to him to warn him that unless he gave up quickly he would be shot to death.

Find Small Arsenal

He yielded to the last warnings, staggering into the hall, where he collapsed.

Search of Crowley and the apartment revealed a small arsenal. He had a pistol holstered to each leg below the knee and five others were discovered in the building and its back yard.

Police said Thursday night the capture of Crowley and Durlinger had yielded confessions from the youths that would clear up two murder and the shooting of another person.

Police said Durlinger put up a fight in the rooming house and that the girl also struggled fiercely against capture.

Police Commissioner Edward P. Mulrooney directed the seige.

Norwegian Government Resigns

OSLO, Norway, May 7. (AP)—The Norwegian government resigned Thursday after the odelsting (parliament) approved by a vote of 57 to 55 a resolution deploring the granting of the so-called Lilleborg concession.

"My God, Jim, what are you doing?" Foster said his wife screamed at him.

"Then I lit a match," the confession read. "The first time the gasoline didn't ignite. With the second match the entire room burst into flames. I had soaked a path from our bedroom into the children's Mildred (aged 11) yelled at me: "Why, daddy, what are you doing?' and Margaret (his wife) screamed: 'He's going to burn all of us up.' I ran from the house and got into the car. I drove to Ault, Colo."

Convicted of Murder

HOUSTON, May 7. (AP)—Luther Berwick, accused slayer of William Byrd and Miss Belle Crowe of Port Arthur, was convicted of murder here Thursday in connection with Byrd's death and sentenced to three years. A previous trial had brought the death penalty, but the case was reversed by the court of criminal appeals.

Wheat Increase Forecast

ENID, Okla., May 7. (AP)—Increases over 1930 in wheat production of 20,000,000 bushels for Texas were forecast here Thursday by John Manley, manager of the Oklahoma Wheat Growers Association. Manley predicted the Oklahoma total would be 52,000,000 and that for Texas 45,000,000 bushels.

Three Die After Collision

NEW YORK, May 7. (AP)—Cut in two by the steel prow of the steamer New York, the tugboat Trimount of Boston, was sunk early Thursday off Race Rock 10 miles southeast of New London, with a loss of three lives. Six men were picked up in lifeboats.

BERLIN, May 7. (AP)—Warsaw newspapers reported Thursday night in dispatches from Kharkov, the Ogpu, soviet secret service organization, executed 22 high officers in the Ukrainian military district. The officers, the report said were arrested a month ago and charged with attempting a military revolt.

advised that the debts question was "a matter which had better not be brought up before this conference, because it is of the highest political importance."

Plunging into the subject regardless, he said "under the Young plan, Germany has to pay her several creditors what they owe to the United States, so that the full burden of the international debts falls upon Germany."

Declaring the reparations problem still awaits a complete economic solution, Bergmann said that since the existing agreements were concluded the world has undergone such violent economic changes that a settlement "which may have been considered possible of realization at the time must now be looked at more critically."

English Purchases Great.

Mr. Bell said England in 1930 had bought more than four times as much goods from the United States than this country had from England.

"In the whole of Europe America sells twice as much as it will take in exchange," he said. "And we come here today to put it up to them as to whether they will face the new position in which they find themselves, whether they do not feel that in regard to this kind of debts and possibly in regard to the other kinds of debts about which you have just heard, a rather larger, a rather kinder, a rather better attitude might be taken."

Alfred Falter, chairman of the Polish delegation, told the agricultural group meeting this afternoon worldwide action to adjust production to consumption was imperative.

Remove uncertainty in so far as the shortening is concerned with BIRDBRAND. In two, four, and eight-pound pails at your dealer's.

FRESH STRAWBERRY PIE
Pie Crust (1 large pie)

1½ cups flour
¾ teaspoon salt
½ cup BIRDBRAND
4 to 6 tablespoons ice or ice-cold water

Sift flour and salt; cut in BIRDBRAND with two knives. Add just enough water so that the pastry can be rolled. Roll and fit to pie tin. Fill with the following mixture:

Filling

3 cups fresh strawberries
1 tablespoon cornstarch
2/3 to 1 cup sugar
1/8 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon Rio Valley butter

Blend together the sugar, cornstarch and salt. Pour over berries and stir until well coated. Pour into an unbaked crust, adjust a top crust and bake in a hot oven (450°) for 15 minutes, then reduce the oven temperature to 350° for 20 minutes.

BLOC VOTES

MUCH is said about delivering the so-called bloc votes in American elections. Politicians talk of the labor vote, the farm vote, the negro vote, the foreign-born vote and the woman vote, and candidates, parties and "causes" base their hopes upon them, but they are never delivered in toto. The electorate doesn't vote by occupation, sex or color, and not always by principle. Sometimes even party lines break down, when they are not breaking down other lines.

Are not the drys at the present time counting so much on the woman vote to prevent any change in the prohibition laws. There is considerable evidence that women vote much as men do on this national issue. Some will jump party fences to vote wet or dry, while others will vote "regular" regardless of their convictions on prohibition.

Can the drys reconcile their claims to the "solid vote" with the business-like convention in Washington of Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, representing more than 300,000 women? These anti-prohibitionists are just as determined to vote against all drys irrespective of party as the members of the Women's Christian Temperance Union are to vote against all wets regardless of party. And both are representative enough to win an audience with the president.

The W. C. T. U. probably never controlled or represented as large a vote as it was credited with, nor will the wet group be able to deliver the "woman vote" even though future generations of women should subscribe to its principles, an eventuality suggested by the fact that women of middle age or older predominate in the W. C. T. U., while the reform group is attracting younger women.

LESS HERO-WORSHIP

THEORETICALLY, hero-worship is an important factor in forming the character of the young and in shaping all lives. Iconoclasts are excoriated because they are supposed to destroy ideals and demolish idols, and historians are justly criticized for glorifying national leaders by fashioning them into mythical heroes.

A University of California scientist is probably the first prominent educator to contend that hero-worship has little to do with the formation of character and ideals. He bases his conclusions upon laboratory experiments in which 2,000 high school pupils were examined.

According to this survey, high school students do not know enough about great men and women to pattern their lives after them. A large part of the 2,000 couldn't list 25 great leaders and their ideas as to why they were great leaders were most vague. Nor were all those listed deserving of such high place.

These experiments may prove that hero-worship is not encouraged enough in the schools and the home, it being apparent that the average child is not sufficiently informed to choose for himself or herself some worthy ideal. There are no character-building qualities in the bare knowledge that George Washington was the first president and commander in chief of the Continental Army. It is necessary to go deeply into the private and public life of a man or woman to find something to strengthen the character of the delve.

Or perhaps the study explains the utter lack of character in many people.

CHICAGO

THERE will be little mourning throughout the entire country over the defeat of Mayor "Big Bill" Thompson, of Chicago, by Anton Cermak, his Democratic opponent. Thompson deserved the rebuke he received at the hands of the voters. Why he was twice elected mayor of the nation's second largest city is one of the recurring political mysteries of this democracy.

It was during the administrations of Thompson as mayor that gangsterdom perfected its rackets and hoisted crime to diabolical and unsavory heights. The Chicago pattern became the object of imitation by the underworld the country over.

Chicago has reached the decision that if this is the new "one hundred per cent Americanism" it wants no more of it. As happened in many states last November, Republicans by the hundreds of thousands voted for a Democrat. For relief from the noble experiment of racketeering, the Republican party offered no remedies.

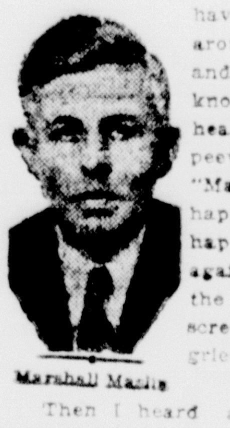
"MAKE ME HAPPY" THE OLD, SAD, FUTILE CRY CROAKING FROG AND BAYING DOG

I HEARD a plaintive little voice, weeping in the dark. And over and over it said the same thing, made the same sad moan, as if its heart would break. And this, as I listened, as I eavesdropped, is what I heard:

"Make me happy! Why don't you make me happy? You said you would make me happy, and you haven't kept your promise. Please make me happy."



Marshall Maslin

It might have been a cricket in the garden, it might have been a sad frog in the pool, it might have been only the wind whining around the corners of a shabby and abandoned house. I don't know, I can't say. But I'll swear I heard that monotonous lament, peevishly sounding in the night. "Make me happy! Make me happy! Make me happy! Make me happy!" Again and again and again, like the ticking of a clock the creaking of a dry axle, the screech of an owl. Frightened, aggrieved. Complaining.

Then I heard a dog barking. Suddenly he awakened from his sleep and I heard him baying. He sounded like a big dog, one of those fine old fellows with a splendid head and a wise look of philosophic calm about his eyes, in the lines of his muzzle. The old dog barked and he might have been baying at the moon that hid and appeared and hid again behind the clouds. He might, I'll admit, have been doing that, but I'll swear that I heard him saying:

"Make you happy? Don't be a little idot! Nobody can make you happy. You must make your own happiness: you must do it yourself. If you can't find a bit of happiness, just a scrap of it right now, you'll never find it anywhere, any time. Nobody, nobody, nobody can make you happy. Get that through your thick little skull. Make your own happiness, make it right here, make it out of things that are right where you are. Don't be a sniveling little nuisance; don't be depending on other creatures all the time. Do your own stuff, do your own stuff. You make me sick, you make me sick. You ought to be ashamed! Woof!"

I heard his great, deep voice, filling all the streets and gardens and I couldn't hear the weepy little voice any more. But, suddenly, I heard a small bird singing in the heart of the night—and I'll swear I heard him shouting. "You're right! You're right! You're right!"

And, of course, he was.

Who's Who—Timely Views

PUBLIC HEALTH OFFICER IS PORTRAYED IN ROLE OF NEEDED EDUCATOR

By Ray Lyman Wilbur
Secretary of the Interior

THERE has been much talk aobut the science and the art of medicine. I am more and more convinced that there is a science and art for public health officials, which is even more important. The physician largely cares for an individual. The public health official cares for a community or even for a state or nation. He may have sufficient facts for the wisest possible decision but yet his presentation of them may lead to their rejection. Facts and science are not enough. There is an art in government and a particular art in the bringing in of such a new factor into government as public health with its dominating demands.

As an educator, the public health official has constantly new material to teach. Old bodies of information must be constantly brought to the attention of new students. The job of education is never done. Ignorance is the greatest enemy of the public health. Lack of finances and lack of organization are difficulties that must be met, but ignorance stands supreme.

There is a constant desire on the part of millions of our people and of youth in general, to know more of personal health and public health. There is an enormous amount of mis-education, much of it based on pure cupidity and selfishness. In the practice of medicine, one may make just the right diagnosis and may prescribe just the right remedy for the patient, but unless the medicine is actually taken, the whole relationship between the doctor and the patient has been one of waste motion.

This holds true in all public health. We may give the very best of instructions to a person or a family or a community but if they are not actually carried out, or if they are carried out imperfectly through lack of understanding, the result is apt to be a fiasco.

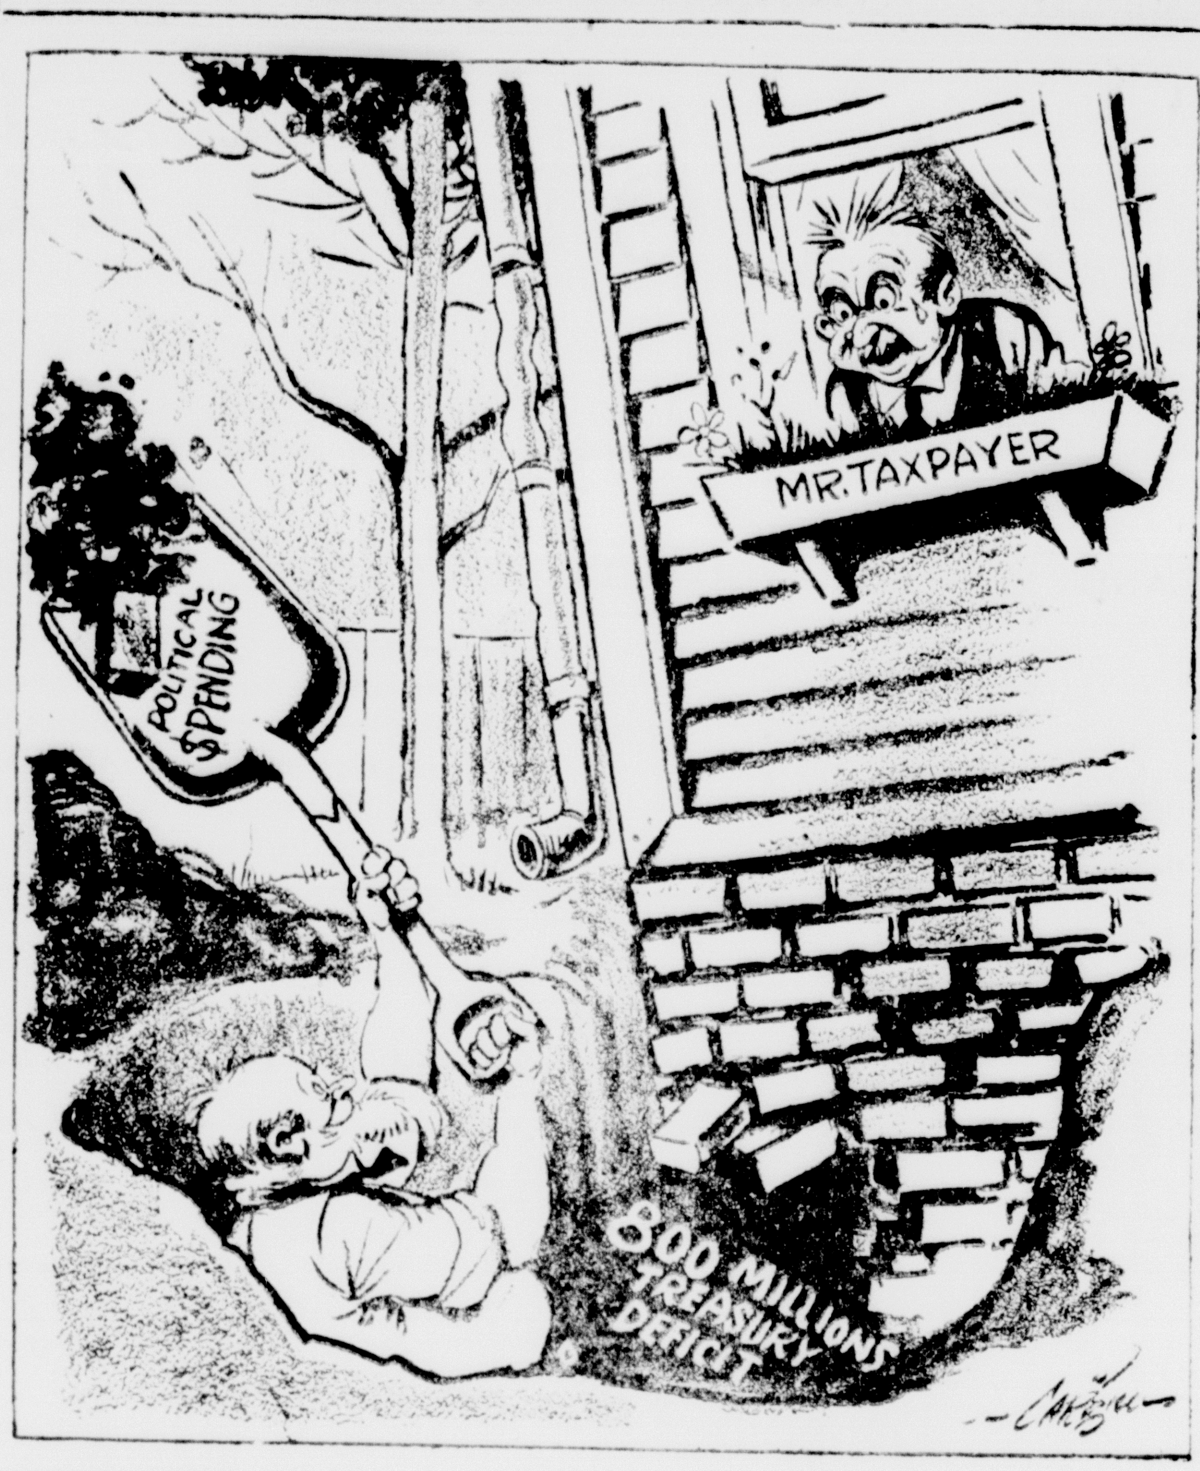
Unfortunately, much of the failure to carry out public health instructions is due to lack of funds. Here again the health officer must turn to education for his remedy. Communities can be successfully taught the importance of spending a portion of their tax monies upon protection from disease and conditions harmful to health. The most successful public health administrators are successful educators. They are men who have not only the science of public health administration, but also the art of public health administration at their command. Patience and not aiming too high seem to be the two most important requisites in the educational process.

STAR LORE

WATCHING THE MOON TRAVEL

THE easily noticed movement of the moon to the eastward around the celestial sphere has always been one of the greatest attractions toward the consideration of astronomy. Whenever the moon passes near a conspicuous planet, its eastward progress is observed readily by the distance with which the moon leaves the planet behind. Or a star serves the same purpose: Carefully locate a star close to the moon. The evening following notice how far the moon has left that star behind. In an hour's time the moon advances a little more than the width of its own apparent diameter. Its orbital velocity is 38.10 miles a minute, or close to 3,350 feet a second.

GETTING CLOSE TO HOME



Comments From Contemporaries

NEW YORK WORLD-TELEGRAM.

Industry, ambition and resolute adherence to a few simple buisness principles can carry an American boy far. They took Isaac Gimbel from a little group of stores in Vincennes, Ind., developed by his father from a single shop where harnesses, printed cottons, nails, guns, &., were bartered for furs, to the chairmanship of the board of Gimbel Brothers, Inc., one of the country's big chain systems of department stores.

Old Adam Gimbel, the father, appears to have had large-scale notions of shopkeeping and some notably enduring slogans, such as "One price for all," "Your money back if you're not satisfied." He would have been proud indeed if he could have seen what Isaac and his brothers managed to build on these and a few other sound trade maxims.

From a public point of view Isaac Gimbel's life was about as modest and retiring as a man's could well be. All his interest, energy and imagination went into the great stores which he was determined should be the equal of any in this country or in Europe. The company was his life. He was well satisfied to have it his monument.

CORPUS CHRISTI TIMES

Determining the guilt or innocence of persons accused of crime seems to be getting to be a complicated and expensive business.

Detroit recently put three men on trial for the murder of Gerald Buckley, the popular young radio announcer who was shot to death last summer at the climax of a hot political campaign.

The other day the three men were acquitted—after a trial that lasted 15 weeks, cost the state something like $500,000 and saw 130 witnesses testify for the prosecution alone.

The machinery must be a little bit out of gear when one criminal trial can take up that much time and money. If we were as fond of efficiency as we are supposed to be, we would insist on immediate repairs.

Rupert Hughes has written a book about marriage and men. It's called "No One Man," and he sets out to prove that no one man can hope to satisfy one woman emotionally of intelectually.

It takes Rupe 386 pages to say what the gifted Louise "Texas" Guinan summed up in a single line:

"Marriage," she says., "is carrying love just a little too far."

Happy Man

I got talking to Farley, the elevator man in the Gilbert & Sullivan studios building, the other night.

"I never let life get under my skin," he told me. "I do my day's work an' when I'm through, I'm through. I never carry my work home with me."

It doesn't matter where you are, it's whom you're with that counts.

An old colored Mammy ran away from her daughter's home in Harlem one evening recently and presented herself at the Travelers' Aid desk in the Grand Central Station.

Cosmo Cogitates.

Cosmo Hamilton, British novelist, doesn't like the modern young man.

He thinks he is at least 50 per cent below the modern young woman, that he's affected with half-wittedism, a vacous ego undesire and inability to earn his living, a weakness for being "kept" by man or woman. He thinks he has a tender skin, literally and otherwise and that he's freckled mentally as well as physically.

The reason for this, he says, is that the youngsters came of age during the war, or after it, witnessed the general ineptitude of of men of the world thought great; they watched laurel wreaths die; they grew up in a world without heroes, without illusions, without God.

Cosmo has met the wrong youngsters, that's his trouble.

In the News 13 Years Ago

From the files of The Paris Morning News thirteen years ago today.

Wednesday, May 8, 1918

The City National Bnak distributed 5000 cigarettes to soldiers who were passing through Paris to camp and had come up town for exercise.

C. P. Frazier, 67, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Jack Hodges on North seventeenth street.

Joe S. McKnight and Miss Roxie Smallwood were married by Rev. W. B. Kendall at the bride's home on Bonham boulevard.

C. C. McKinney of Cooper, over the draft age, came to Paris and enlisted in the medical reserve corps and went to Dallas to take the final examination. He was anxious to get to Europe and into action.

Backward Glances

By A. W. Neville

Before athletics began to be so much of a science that it was included in the school and college activities, with coaches to instruct the young idea how to run and jump, the popular form with the young men of my day was a pair of dumb bells, or of Indian clubs, or maybe both. These were swung daily or nightly with the idea that they gave the swinger increased muscle and flexibility, and it is true that they furnished the exercise that once had been obtained by swinging an ax to cleave the firewood for the family or a hoe to rid the field or garden of weeds.

Many of the young men working in stores kept a pair of these exercisers and used them regularly to keep from getting soft after their cessation of manual labor and graduation into merchandising.

Running of foot races was also in vogue, and I have seen a pair of sprinters chase across the public square at the end of an argument as to which was the faster, while an admiring crowd cheered them on. The distance was about 100 yards but there were no stop watches held on them and I do not know what time they made.

Forty-odd years ago Jim Anderson, who then worked for Martin Wise and Fitzhugh, in the cotton business, and later became a banker in Kansas City, was by way of being an amateur sport, and would bet on anything that offered competition. He and a young Englishman who worked for the same firm had an argument on the merits of English versus American athletes and Jim finally wagered the Englishman that he would do three miles on the fair ground track in 21 minutes, running one mile, walking one and riding a horse one.

The wager excited a deal of interest and presently T. C. Dickson, a building contractor here, decided it could not be done and laid considerable money on it with Anderson and his backers. The race was run, walked and ridden inside the time, though I do not now recall the recorded time.

The exhibition was given at the old fair grounds southwest of Paris and when Anderson started the ride the horse shied and threw him, but stopped in his tracks and the rider remounted and concluded the race. Dickson expressed disappointment that the rider's neck was not broken having decided by that time that he had lost, and paid his wager.

about the glands—that overbalance of one gland's secretion produced one kind of individual, that altered function of some of these glands produced criminals or geniuses, as the case might be. Napoleon was simply due to decreased pituitary secretion, and Lincoln to increased pituitary secretion, according to these ideas.

Those ideas still belong to the region of airy speculation. It was not so long ago that two youthful murders were defended on the grounds that they were victims of glands and the jury solemnly heard the testimony about the effects of thymicopituitary imbalance.

Doubtless the ductless glands do affect personality in a secondary way. If your bodily functions are deviated along certain channels, your mind and personality are likely to be warped also. But the way the character is warped depends more on what it was to begin with than what the glands do to it. If the pituitary gland makes a boy fat and ungainly, of feminine type of body with sissy ways, he will naturally be different in personality and mentality from other boys, but sometimes this will actually contribute to his worldly success.

"The person of average schizothymic temperament shows a tendency to be independent of others that is to say he tends to be an 'introvert' rather than an vert' (in the serce of Jun does not vibrate in sympath his surroundings he likes alone rather than with othe ple. Guiding Your Child

By Mrs. Agnes Lyne

Bad tempers grow with exercise. Ugly dispositions feed on unpleasand scenes. Jealousy watches every opportunity to absorb the poison on which it thrives. Every unhappy quality in the unfolding character of your child develops through emphasis on its existence.

Don't give your child a chance to realize the worst in himself. If temper tantrums are his weakness, study the apparent causes. Don't let the situation arise that brings on the emotional storm. If being reminded of a certain thing tends to irritate him, find some indirect way of making your point. (This is the second of two articles delaing with cuba.)

WASHINGTON.—America's responsibility for what Senator William H. King of Utah declares to be the present deplorable plight of the Cuban people under the administration of President Gerardo Machado arises, the senator points out, from the so-called "Platt amendment" in the island republic's constitution.

Directly after the Spanish war, when the Cubans were framing a code of fundamental laws for their country, word was passed to them from Washington to include in their draft a provision outlining the relationship to exist between Cuba and the United States.

This hint was ignored by the constitutional convention in Havana.

Senator O. H. Platt of Connecticutt undertook to remedy the omission. It happened that the war department appropriation was just in course of being acted on in the upper house of congress and the nutmeg senator added to it an amendment embodying his idea of the right terms for Cuban independence—with a string on it.

Such was the origin of the famous "Platt amendment."

Congress adopted it and the Cubans were notified that ther acceptance of it on a constitutional basis was the essential condition upon which the government they were so anxious to establish would be recognized by the state department.

Since there was nothing else for Havana to do, it asquiesced, not very gracefully.

Under the "Platt Amendment" the Cuban government undertakes to accord various naval facilities to the United States, to observe certain sanitary precautions, to respect its financial obligations, to conclude no foreign agreements without America's approval and, most especially, to recognize Washington's right to resort even to force, if necessary, to maintain public order in Cuba in the event of its own government's inability to do so.

"The interpretation placed by President Machado upon this article in the Platt amendment," says Senator King, "is that i event of an uprising which he self is unable to control, the U States immediately will inter presumably to uphold him; a rate to take charge of the sit with loss of the Cuban's pow self- determination.

"Cubans generally unquesti ly place the same interpretati it, as they have every reason in the absence of a definite d ation to the contrary from W ington."

The senator then asks:

"What sort of an administ is it that we are placed, by i cation, in the position of sup ing?"

"The most cursory investi tion," charges Senator King, demonstrate that the Mac government's policies include:

"1. The dissipation of publi enues upon non-essential pr necessitating extremely bu some taxation.

"2. Maintenance of huge tary organization, at the ex of public health, education an ricultural development.

"3. Substitution for law of trary presidential decrees.

"4. Conclusion of comm treaties highly prejudicial t Cuban people.

"5 Extravagant use of p funds for propaganda under of which many abuses have carried out.

"6. The misappropriation from five to ten millions ann from the national lottery and allocation of such funds in among members of congress, officers, newspaper publisher political henchmen.

"7". The denial of free speech a free press.

"8. The use of military f to prevent lawful assembly a forestall the free exercise of frage.

"9. The letting of govern contracts to firms in which Ma do and his associates have a d financial interest.

Galley two Weshaington letter

"10. The exempton of such from taxation and customs d

"11. The use of govern agencies to harass such f competitors.

"12. The participation of M ado and his associates in e prises based upon concessions the government.

"13. The negotiations of ext loans that are burdensome the people and dangerous to will between the United States Cuba.

HOME RULE BILL

a year each, was adopted.

The senate passed a proposed constitutional amendment which would require a tax payer to render their property for taxation before becoming eligible to vote in bond elections.

A proposed constitutional amendment which would limit counties with a population of 500,000 or less to five representatives and grant them one representative for each additional 100,000, was engrossed by the senate. The vote was 14 to 12.

The senate set the west Texas pink boll worm bill a special order Saturday The bill asks an appropriation of $300,000 to be used in remunerating farmers in west Texas who observed provisions of a pink boll worm quarintine imposed by the state and the federal governments.

Two bills to create new district courts were passed. One established a district court for Hidalgo conty and the other a district court for Rusk county. Rusk county formerly was in the district with Panola and Shelby counties. These counties were placed in a separate district. The oil boom in East Texas, which caused an enormous increase in ligitation was gven as the reason for the new court.

The house engrossed a constitutional amendment resolution to permit the state to make an appropriation for the proposed Texas centennial in 1936. The vote was 80 to 26.

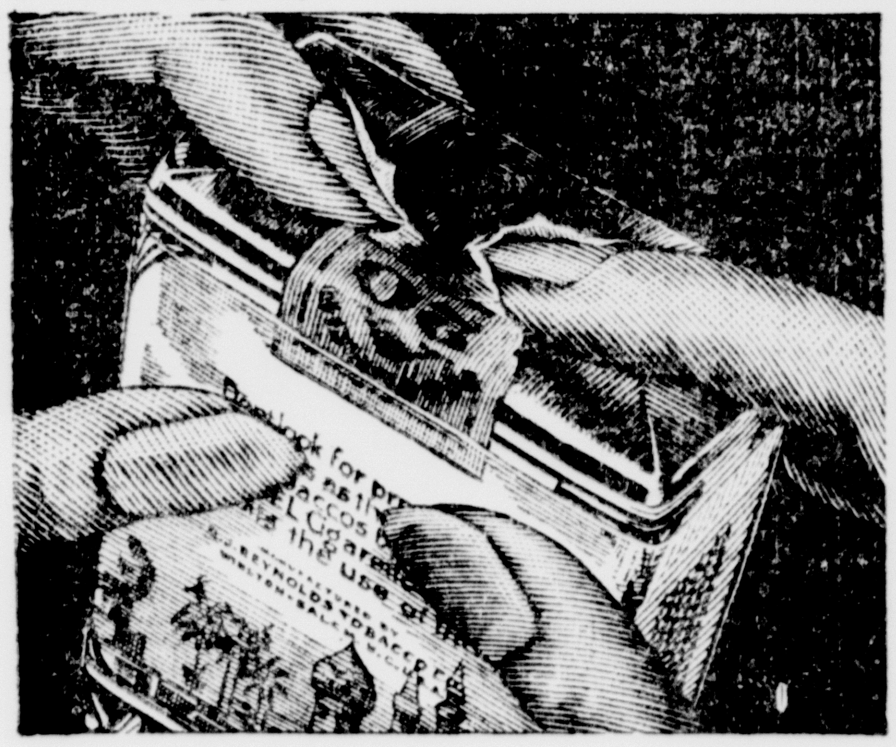
Just lift the FLAP to open THE HUMIDOR PACK

1 Do not tear Cellophane. Look for the convenient flap at the top and back of package

2 Simply lift this flap and you will break the specially devised air-seal

3 Hold package as shown and with your thumbs push it part way out of Humidor Pack



4 To avoid tearing tin foil, slip first finger of each hand under Revenue stamp and break it

5 Help yourself to a fresh cigarette, then slide package back into its Humidor Pack

6 Close package. It guards Camels from dust and germs and provides sanitary protection

THE moment you open the new Camel Humidor Pack you begin to note the advantages of this new, scientific and sanitary method of wrapping Camel cigarettes.

At once you are greeted with the delightful aroma that comes from choicest Turkish and mellowest Domestic tobaccos in prime condition.

Your sense of touch also detects the freshness of Camels, for unlike moisture-robbed cigarettes Camels are pliable to the fingers.

But the real difference comes when you light a Camel and inhale its cool, fragrant smoke.

Cigarettes brought to you so perfectly conditioned deserve to be kept that way in your pocket.

The simplest way to insure this is to open the Camel Humidor Pack as shown above.

That will keep intact the mildness and freshness that is making the whole country say: "Now I'd walk two miles for a Camel because they're twice as good."

If you haven't tried Camels in the new Humidor Pack, switch over for just one day.

Then go back tomorrow, if you can.

Lamar Schools Sue For $20,851

A law suit involving $20,851.75 Lamar county school districts, W. Gregory Hatcher, former state treasurer, and the American Surety company, Monday will be called in a district court at Austin, according to John S. Baker, county auditor, who accompanied by A. P. Dohoney and Tom L. Beauchamp, attorneys for the school districts, Sunday will leave for Austin.

A draft for $19,948, dated April 10,1926, drawn on the Republic National Bank of Dallas, and a cashier's check for $903.75, drawn on the former First State Bank of Paris dated May 8, 1926, which Mr. Baker mailed to Mr. Hatcher to pay for redemption and interest of school bonds represents the cause for suit. The checks were not presented for payment by the former state treasurer until after the First State bank was closed on May 26, 1926. That the draft for $19,948 was received by Mr. Hatcher on April 12 is admitted in his answer to plaintiff's petition.

The sut is styled "State of Texas for use of School Districts in Lamar county vs W. Gregory Hatcher, former state treasurer, and American Surety Company of New York.

Originally set for April 22 the case was continued until May 11.

ASK HEARING ON OIL LANDS SOON

Attorneys Coutend Case Is Holding Up Settlement Of Slick Estate

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., May 7. (AP)—Attorneys for the estate of T. B. Slick the late multimillionaire oil man, and the Glidden Oil company, Thursday asked the Oklahoma supreme court for an immediate hearing in the Judge Pierce case, involving valuable land in Oklahoma City oil field, on the contention the case is holding up settlement of the estate.

The motion contended the state is being deprived of a large income from gross production tax and a possible increase in the inheritance tax, the latter already estimated at $7,000,000 by state auditor Frank Carter, by the delay.

Would Set Aside Judgment

The Glidden firm and others are seeking to set aside judgment of Oklahoma county district court giving Pierce and his wife title to more than $1,000,000 oil lands in the field.

The Slick Oil firm has wells on the property.

Earlier in the day Melvin Cornish, chairman of the Oklahoma tax commission, announced discovery of an affidavit purporting to show Slick, who died last year, was a bona fide resident of Oklahoma county. It had been contended by Pennsylvania authorities he was a citizen of Clarion, Pa., Cornish said, thus delaying settlement of the estate.

Oklahoma officials have expressed the belief the inheritance tax from the estate would wipe out the state deficit.

CHICAGO BRUINS TAKE 11 INNINGS TO DEFEAT REDS

Victory Gives Manager Hornsby's Crew Clean Sweep Of Series

CHICAGO, May 7. (AP)—It took the Chicago Cubs 11 innings Thursday afternoon to beat the Cincinnati Reds and sweep the three-game series, but they managed to do it by the score of 5-4. The Reds scored four times in the fifth inning off Smith, when Hornsby made the last of three errors.

Charlie Grimm was out of the lineup suffering from lumbago, but he is expected to be available for the New York series.

PANTHERS SCORE SIXTEEN FRAME WIN OVER BUCS

Harris Weakens to Allow Fort Worth Entry 4-2 Decision

GALVESTON, May 7. (AP)—Black Bill Harris weakened in the sixteenth inning Thursday and Fort Worth slipped over two runs to break up the first extra inning game of the season here 4-2.

Both Dick McCabe and Harris pitched masterful ball, being airtight in the pinches. Harris had himself to blame for not winning by a shutout for in the sixth after Moore walked, Harris threw Dalrymple's sacrifice past first base into deep right field and both tallied. The Cats counted in the sixteenth after Brown and Perry hit and another hit, mixed in with an error, brought them across the plate.

Hole In One Is Made By Francis

As he was playing in a qualifying match for the Paris Junior College golf team on the Paris Golf Course, W. C. Francis, Jr., shot a hole in one to knock down his score for the nine holes to 38. The dodo was made on hole number 7.

Francis was playing with Jimmie Adams and Jesse Bailey, both of the junior college and both members of the Dragon foursome. The number seven hole on which they were playing is 147 yards long and is not considered one of the easiest on the course.

Tuesday the golf team of the college will go to Fort Worth to take part in the state junior college match. Charles Kistenmacher W. C. Francis, Jr., Jimmie Adams and Jesse Bailey compose the team. Each of these men have qualified for the team by turning in low scores to the golf coach, T. E. Gay.

THE BAT BAG

By Harry Cox

Jimmy Adair, the blonde pepper pot who formerly played baseball in Paris, is setting the International league on fire with his sensational fielding and hitting. James is not much bigger than a sack of circus peanuts, but has become a real menace with the stick. He has cracked out three home runs since the season opened and the majority of his hits have been for extra bases. He is with the Reading club, of which Pants Rowland, former Chicago White Sox pilot is the manager.

And while James is doing his stuff at Reading his friend and playmate of boyhood days, the Great Shires, is doing his stuff at Milwaukee. A leather lunged fan in a recent game in the Cream City screamed out "git a first baseman," as Charles Arthur made an error. "Wait a minute," Whattaman told the umps, "I'm gonna stop that guy—and stop him good." History records the fact that Charles Arthur did stop the fan, who left the scene of the ball game in an ambulance. The fans gave the Great One an ovation when he returned to his post.

Mr. Dazzy Vance, the big victory man of the Brooklyn Dodgers, came through with his first win of the season Monday. The Dazzler was a holdout during the spring. He wanted $25,000 for his year's endeavors, and the Brooklyn bosses couldn't or wouldn't see it. They slyly pointed out the fact that the Vance record for 1930 was not so hot, and that there were no indications that he would better his 1930 performance in 1931.

A compromise was finally effected and the Dazzler is toiling for the insignificant sum of $23,000. For this money Vance has won one game and lost the rest that he has started. Maybe the Dodger bosses had the right hunch. At least they are saving $2,000 on the season, and it's the money saved that counts. Vance played a few games in Paris way back yonder, but his name wasn't Dazzy then—it was "Gimlet." Not a high sounding title but it was expressive, as Vance was built along lines similar to a gimlet—not meaning that he was crooked—but just slim.

"Them Cats" as Jakie Atz was wont to term them when he was managing Fort Worth, are living up to the preseason dope. Sports writers all over the state selected the Cats as probable pennant winners, and for once it seems as if they had made a good guess. This outfit is stepping right along, and no club seems able to stop them. Even Dallas sport writers admit that the Cats have it over their outfit. But that is not a guess—it's a proven fact.

Wayne Windle, the Texarkana mule swapper, has signed with the Milwaukee club of the American Association. Windle, a persistent hold out every season while playing in Texas, was a free agent, and when an opportunity came to get back in baseball he jumped at it. In the off season he sells horses and mules down at Texarkana, also manages prize fighters and "wraslers." The mule business is not so good this year, and pay days in base ball come twice a month.

Charley Dorman, the big base hit man while playing in the old East Texas league has flivvered almost out of the game. Tyler sold him to Cleveland, and he stayed there a couple of years. The Indians turned him over to New Orleans, which in turn passed him on to Kansas City. The Blues couldn't use Dorman this year and he has been shifted to the Three-Ill league. "A fair class D ball player," is what Red Snapp termed Dorman, as he watched him hoist baseballs out of the park.

"That feller a big leaguer—don't make me laugh," Snapp said one day here. And Dorman was leading the league in hitting by a big margin. "He's lucky," Snapp said when told of Dorman's stellar feats. And it looks as if Snapp had the right hunch. Dorman hit a few points over .400 while playing with Tyler and he did look as if he would become a sensation, but the chunkers must have found his weakness for his average shrank to a whisper last year, and his fielding, never any too good, also took a slump.

Randy Moore, who is a bench warmer at Philadelphia, may be converted into a pitcher. The Phillies need pitching badly and Randy has the arm for that kind of work. He has been taking daily turns in batting practice, and has shown a lot of stuff. He lacks experience on the mound, and may not make the grade this year. But he doesn't seem to fit in anywhere else, and if he can learn to fool the enemy hitters he would be of great comfort to the Phillies—and they have very few comforters.

Spuds Come From Behind For Win

SAN ANTONIO, May 7. (AP)—Wichita Falls' Spudders overcame a five run lead to defeat the San Antonio Indians here 10-8 Thursday.

The Tribe started fast by scoring four runs in the opening round as the result of two timely wallops for extra bases by Orr and Hamilton. In the sixth inning a couple of three baggers counted for the Spudders.

Tom Estell was sent in to relieve Carson but shared the same fate and Roy Walker finished up.

Players to Travel

CHICAGO, (INS)—The players of the Goodman Repertory theatre, which is operated in connection with the Chicago Art Institute, may travel to London this spring to present their highly successful version of Philip Barry's "Hotel Universe." Hubert Osborne, head of the Goodman company, has announced he has received an offer from a prominent London producing firm.

Houston Buffs Win Seventh In Row Off Sports

HOUSTON, May 7. (AP)—For the second straight night the Buffs showed they had the stuff of which champions are made. They spotted Shreveport five runs and then whipped the Atzmen 8 to 5. Wednesday night they spotted the Atzmen six runs and won 7 to 6.

The Sports knocked Durham from the hill in the third. Payne pitched the next five innings and Hansen the last two. Hansen's pinch-hitting for Payne in the seventh started the rally that chased Wood. An error by Michales figured in Wood's undoing.

Peel's single with the bases loaded, scoring two runs, was the big wallop of the seventh. It was Houston's seventh straight win.

The Cummer-Graham Eagles maintained their 1.000 per cent average Thursday afternoon when they defeated the Johnson-Billingsley Bear Cats by a score of 4 to 1 in a well played game. The Eagles hit the ball at times when hits meant runs and played good ball behind the steady pitching of Lefty Suttle.

Suttle held the Bear Cats scoreless until the fifth when they managed to gauge his slants for one score. Arnold, relieving Bassano, pitched good ball until the fifth, when he was nicked for two hits that netted two runs. Templeton for the Eagles had a perfect day at bat with a triple, a single and a sacrifice.

He Let everyone know that Mary was his latest find.

CHAPTER 3

Mary groaned and sank into a little crushed heap on the floor.. She could have wept.

Then she remembered that Dick—Dick was waiting downstairs for her to dress in a jiffy. She snatched up her old kimona and dashed into the bathroom.

No time for vain regrets. She would just have to make the best of it. While she proceeded with swift, mechanical motions, she tried to think of something she might do to improve what was left for her to wear.

No use! The only possibility was the beige lace, suntan pearls, gold slippers, tarnished and worn at the toes, Bonnie's old blue wrap with the gray squirrel collar—not her color or style at all. Oh, how could Bonnie, her thoughts wandered over and over.

At last she was ready. Dick laid down the magazine he had been fingering and rose as she came into the room. His eyes appraised her. He seemed to be satisfied with her appearance, but his manner was not so enthusiastic as it might have been, had she worn the red dress, she thought.

"You hold the record for speed," he told. "Not many women can do the quick change in that time. You look grand, Mary."

Her heart ached. But only for a moment. Soon they were again crossing on the ferry, in the snug intimacy of the coupe, and Mary quite forgot that she wore the old lace frock.

She was more painfully aware of it when she entered the ladies' lounge at the club, however. Sequins and brilliants dazzled all about her, sheen of satins and lustre of exquisite velvets, blended with foaming, irridescent chiffons on scores of well-groomed women. Not many of them had worked in an office until eight o'clock, Mary surmised. She hastened out to join Dick in the reception room.

He was already the center of a group of chattering girls with a fringe of men in the offing. But he saw Mary at once, and came to her gallantly.

Mary never had been introduced to so many people at one time, in her whole life; and she was not obvious of their critical scrutiny. She gained the impression that she passed their inspection rather well. At any rate, she did not lack dancing partners.

Fortunately, she danced well. Fortunately, she danced kell. Mary knew that. It was just an inherent part of her—a sense of rhythm and balance and grace. More than once she had been told that she walked like a queen poised and graceful.

Dick was charming. He saw that she met everyone and was most deferential in his attentions to her. In fact he let everyone know that Mary Vaughn was his "latest find" and he was proud of it. At which Mary glowed and looked her best. There is nothing be it ever so plain. Mary forgot that she wore last season's gown. In fact, she had the best time in all her life, and radiated her happiness.

"Like it?" Dick asked her on the way home.

"Oh, Dick, it was lovely. You have so many nice friends."

"Well, just so you don't like my friends better than me."

"Of course not," she assured him.

"Check;" he declared.

"Double-check!" she laughed.

Mary had been in bed about an hour when Bonnie slipped into the room. But she wasn't asleep. The evening had been too stimulating for sleep. She had rehearsed every moment of it again and again in her thought, and had even ventured farther. Perhaps, some day, she would marry Dick and they would be going always to places like the University club—oh, many dignified and exclusive places that were closed to her now.

Mary stirred at Bonnie's entrance.

"Asleep?" Bonnie asked in a whisper.

"No. Turn on the light if you wish. I'm wido awake as an owl. Have a good time?"

"Oh, not so hot! And my head is splitting. I'll say the honorable Horace P. carries a mean flask. And I ruined your dress, Mary. Awful sorry. But some fellow tipped over my punch while Horace was hiking it up. "I'll pay you for it when I get to work again."

"Oh, Bonnie;!" Mary's voice was almost a wail. "I don't know when I can afford another new dress. I stretched a point to get that one." She knew that Bonnie's promise o pay her was forgotten as soon as it was given.

"The spots might come out if you have it cleaned," Bonnie suggested carelessly.

"But a thing is never new after it has been cleaned," Mary declared vehemently, and very near to tears. She was almost angry with Bonnie, for the first time in her life. This affair seemed to be the straw that broke the camel's back. It was because the incident struck her so vitally—in the vulnerable spot of her desire to make herself attractive for Dick.

But this was no time to quarrel with Bonnie, she decided reasonably. And besides, there was nothing she could do about it. The dress was ruined. To exhaust her resentment, she turned over her pillow and gave it a vicious punch. "Well, I've got to get forty winks or so if I expect to make an appearance at the offfice in the morning."

"The way I feel, I'm glad I don't haave to shuffle out in the morning,' Bonnie observed. "There are some advantages, even, to being out of a job. By the way, where did you pick up the swell date? He is the berries. Maybe commuting does pay, after all. What's his line? They don't grow 'em like that here in Patterson.

"Oh, he works 'in the street,' He's just out of Princeton and starting as wholesale man for Jameson-Blair. He is going to save his money to buy a seat on the exchange and start his own business."

"Well, he will probably go far and wide and land feet first. He won't need engraved cards with that face and figure. I suppose he played football."

"Why, yes—fullback. Don't you remember seeing his picture on the sport pages a lot last year?"

Bonnie's eyes rounded incredulously. "Not that Dick Baldwin? Why I never thought of making the connection. You would take it that way, now wouldn't you? Well, Mary Vaughn, you've done yourself proud. Uhm! Uhm! Ain't that somethin'! Well, after all, the girl must have sex appeal, or something. First date with him? Gee, kid, I'm sorry about the dress. No wonder you wanted to look like the big parade!"

"Forget it now. It's all over. And if he likes me for the clothes I wear, it's just as well to be disillusioned sooner or later. No, I've been out with him twice before."

Bonnie whistled and looked thoughtful again. "Some people get all the breaks,' she sighed. "Poor me, stuck here across the river from the world—what chance have I. This place mght just as well be out in Montana, fifty miles from civilization. A handsome, cow-puncher in chaps would put it all over a fellow like Horace P., for instance.

"Didn't you like him? He has lotss of money." That was usually the first recommendation required by Bonnie, and the only one that counted very heavily.

"Year, he's got money. But he's only spending it for a good time, take it from me—only for what he can get with it. Hes not picking up any little Cinderellas like me to marry either. He is not the marrying kind, if you know what I mean. I wouldn't give that for another date with him!"

"Well, let's call it a day, honey. I'll meet myself getting of here in a minute. "Night!"

Insurance Companies May Return to Texas

AUSTIN, (INS)—After more than 20 years of absence from the state, the nation's big life insurance companies may soon be doing business in Texas again if a bill now before the legislature is passed. It seeks revision of the Robertson law of 1907.

Bane of the insurance companies, the Robertson law requires that out-of-state concerns invest 75 per cent of their state reserves in Texas securities. The out-of-state companies left Texas when it went into force, but have, proponents of the bill say, indicated they will return if the investment clause is abolished.

Coincident with the return of the companies, says Rep. Preston Anderson, author of the bill, will come a flood of loan money which will give great relief to Texas farmers, ranchers and other real estate owners. This money, according to Anderson, will result in a reduction of 2 per cent in the interest rate on farm loans.

New York Cotton

NEW YORK, May 7, (AP)—Rather nervous and irregular fluctuations, attributed to conflicting features in the weather news and the unsettled ruling of the stock market, were followed by closing advances in cotton Thursday. July contracts closed at 9.95 compared with 9,91 at the close of the previous day, with the general market closing steady at net advances of 2 to 6 points. Reports of further rains and cool weather in the south and talk of lower money rates seemed to encourage some buying of later deliveries but the market was comparatively quiet.

A forecast for warmer weather in the southwest and renewed weakness in the stock market probably accounted for some of the afternoon selling.

The market stiffened up in the last few minutes on a renewal of covering in sympathy with the closing rally in the stock market and probably in expectation of the reduction in the local bank rate.

A private crop report was published during the morning pointing to a decrease of 10.1 per cent in the intended acreage, which was within the range of recent private reports. There was also a report that fertilizer tag sales in the thirteen southern states for the five months December-April showed a falling off of 28.6 per cent as compared with last year.

New Orleans Cotton.

NEW ORLEANS, May 7, (AP)—Cotton was rather erratic Thursday in moderate trading. Prices fluctuated being largely influenced by the course of the stock market, although there was at times fair trade buying and price fixing by the mills. The weather was also an early bullish influence. The market rallied sharply at the end almost to the highs and closed steady at net gains for the day of 2 to 5 points.

A private authority reported that the sales of fertilizers during April decreased 17.2 per cent compared with April last year.

The chairman of the farm board stated that private reports pointed to a decrease in acreage of 12.5 per cent.

Liverpool came in 4 to 5 penny points worse than due and private cables stated that the continent bought absorbing local liquidation. Manchester cabled that the cloth demand from South America was maintained and that the home trade was better. July closed at 9.97 up 5 points net for the day and October closing at 10.30 up 2 points net.

Chicago Grain

CHICAGO, May 7, (AP)—Forced down by bearish effects of Canadian showers and predicted further moisture in drouth regions northwest, grain prices went lower most of the time Thursday. Spread trading in which it was bought and wheat sold save only transient strength to corn. Surprise over Russian wheat shipments totaling 1,040,000 bushels was a contributing source of weakness.

Wheat closed irregular, 1 5-8 cents down to 1-8 advance, corn at 5-8 to 1 3-4 decline, oats unchanged to 3-8 to 1-2 off, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 25 cents.

Corn showed at one stage more activity and also much more strength than wheat did. Recent speculative sellers of corn were extremely nervous, and were free buyers on upturns in prices.

Closing indemnities, wheat, July 60 1-8 to 61, 62 1-2 to 5-8; Sept. 60 3-4 to 7-8, 62 3-8 to 1-2; Dec. 64 1-8, 65 3-4. Corn, july 58, 59 3-4 to 7-8; Sept. 57 3-8 to 1-2, 58 3-4 to 7-8; Dec. 50 1-2, 51 3-4.

Fort Worth Livestock

FORT WORTH, May 7, (AP)—Hogs 800; early truck sales to small killers steady; packer market 15 to 25c lower on both rail and truck hogs; truck top 7.00, bulk medium to choice 170 to 230 pound rail and truck hogs to packers 6.70 to 6.75; packing sows steady, mostly 5.50, few at 5.75.

Cattle 2,300; all classes cattle and calves about steady; slaughter steers mostly of value to sell around 4.50 to 5.00; carlot top fat yearlings 8.25; other good to choice yearlings 7.25 to 8.00 including two loads at 7.25 on 2 year old order; few fat cows up to 4.50; some good heavy fat calves up to 6.75 and short yearling weights of very good quality up to 7.50; stock steers of good grades 6.10.

Sheep 14,000; good killing classes mostly steady, some sales weak to quarter lower; market very slow on feeders and lower grades killing classes; few good spring lambs up to 8.25, bulk spring lambs 7.50 to 8.00; bulk medium to good shorn fat lambs and yearlings 6.50 to 7.00, medium to good 2 year old fat wethers 4.50 to 4.75. Aged fat wethers 2.50 to 2.75, mixed feeder and fat lambs 6.00 and less.

New York Stock Market.

NEW YORK, May 7, (AP)—A vigorous movement of funds into bonds anticipating reduction of the New York federal reserve rediscount rate to 1½ per cent and reflecting previously taken steps in the broad easy money program, provided a contrast to the uncertain course of stocks in Thursday's financial markets.

Bonds have been helped at previous times during the last eighteen months by favorable credit developments, but other influences have tended to weaken confidence and rallies in the investment market have been rather short lived. Wall street now believes the central banking authorities are seeking to force commercial banks into bonds, thereby strengthening the investment market and helping the cause of business recovery. It is almost axiomatic that a sustained rise in bond prices must precede any durable improvement in stocks; such, at least, has been the experience in past economic cycles.

Share trading was dull and erratic, unsettled by selling of the amusement shares and a few miscellaneous stocks. Most groups eventually joined the decline, which was sufficient to establish new lows for U. S. Steel, American Can, Canadian Pacific, Paramount, Western Union, American Smelting, Eaton Axle and some others. A rally came in the last hour and the losses were substantially reduced. There was a liberal sprinkling of small net gains, but a majority of issues returned moderate losses.

Musical Program Offered at Lions Lunch Thursday

A varied and entertaining program was presented Thursday at the Lions club meeting under the direction of J. M. Crook, chairman of the program committee.

The musical numbzers consisted of vocal solos by Miss Anna Ruth Allbright, and Miss Irene Norton, and duets by the two with Mrs. Troy C. Thompson at the piano.

Mrs. James Bentley presented three of her expression pupils, their numbers including a skit by Master Billy Garner and little Miss Jane Scott and another by Jane Scott and Mysie Lee McLemore. Mrs. Bentley also gave a musical reading which was very much enjoyed, Mrs. Thompson accompanying it.

A. R. Perkins, agency manager fo the Jefferson Standard Life Insurance company was the speaker. His talk on business conditions included some facts about his company's business in Texas. He declared that business is showing a rapid recovery and that there is every reason to be optimistic regarding the future.

Besides those on the program other visitors were Robert M. White H. T. Childers, and Frank Leach of Dallas, J. W. Hickey, Norman Williams and Truman Johnson of Paris and A. E. Elliott of New Orleans.

State President Of Rebekahs Off For Week's Tour

Mrs. B. I. Jordan, president of the Texas Rebekah assembly, left Thursday at noon for a week's tour of several important Rebekah lodges of the state. She was accompanied by her daughter, Miss Marguerite Jordan.

On reaching Waco Thursday night, Mrs. Jordan visited the lodges of that city, and leaves early Friday for Houston, where in the evening, she will be the guest of honor at dinner given by Houston Rebekahs at the Rice hotel. She will afterward pay an official visit to the lodges in joint session. Saturday will be devoted to an all day school of instruction for the Houston lodges.

She will leave for Goosecreek some time Sunday or early Monday, for a visit to the lodge there, reaching Galveston Tuesday for a district association session of the Rebekah assembly.

On Wednesday night, she will meet with the lodges of Beaumont in joint session.

She expects to return here Friday morning and will be honored that evening with a reception by local Rebekahs.

DRILLING ON RED RIVER WELLS NOW

Drilling is in progress on the two oil tests located six and ten miles north of Detroit. This work is in charge of E. M. Daniels, geologist. Work is soon to be resumed on the Johnson test east of Detroit This work was halted because of injury to J. Fred Johnson, driller, who suffered a broken jaw when struck by a piece of pipe some weeks ago.

A driller has been secured for this well, it was stated. This test has had numerous showings of oil, but has been handicapped by water. It is believed, however, this obstacle will be overcome.
